Georgia Aviator Is Bombing Flight Victim

CHARLES A. BOWEN,
OF QUITMAN, DIES
AT LANGLEY FIELD

With Companion, Georgian Is Instantly Killed When Plane Hits Tree and Bomb Explodes.

BOWEN WAS VETERAN OF WAR-TIME FLYING

Body Will Be Brought to Georgia Home, With Military Escort, for Burial.

Hampton, Va., June 7.—Flying Cadets Noel R. Thompson and C. A. Bowen were killed instantly at Langley field this afternoon when a de Havilland 4-B plane in which they were making a bombing flight struck a tree top and became ignited. Three of four bombs being carried in the carriage were detonated and blew the machine to bits, burning and terribly mutilating the bodies of the two aviators.

Pieces of the plane were thrown long distances by the first explosion which occurred about a minute after the machine took a straight drive into an oak tree which stands on the edge of the flying field. Efforts had been made by Cadet Thompson, pilot, to extricate his machine from the tree even after flames had broken out by the engine. Ambulances were hurried to the scene which arrived after both cadets were dead.

Cadet Thompson, whose home is in Jacksonville, Ill., and Cadet Bowen, of Quitman, Ga., had come to Langley field only a few weeks ago from Kelly field, Texas. They were considered safe pilots and had been participating since their arrival in preparations for army, navy bombing experiments to be conducted later this month. Neither of the cadets had been in charge of any of the larger bombing types of planes, and on the flight which resulted in their deaths they carried small bombs containing gun powder for light larger work.

Immediately after the accident, Colonel William H. Hensley, commanding officer at the flying station, ordered a complete investigation of the cause, and named a special board of officers to conduct it. Pending the board's report no official comment is offered.

Bodies of the dead cadets, who would have been placed on the officers' reserve list upon completion of their training course, were turned over to a local undertaker to be prepared for shipment to their homes.

Quitman, Ga., June 7.—(Special.) Charles A. Bowen, army aviator, the son of Mrs. R. S. Bowen, of Quitman, was instantly killed by a fall at Langley field, Virginia, his mother was this afternoon informed in a telegram from the flying field.

He had been in the aviation department of the army for four years. He went across with the first American aero squadron and saw service in Germany and France through the war. Until recently, he was stationed at Kelly field, in Texas but a few weeks ago was transferred to the Langley field to participate in the joint army and navy maneuvers in which the throwing of bombs on battleships was being tried out.

Bowen was twenty-six years of age and is survived by his mother and three brothers and a sister, the latter having graduated with first honors here last week. The body will be brought to Quitman with military escort and interred here.

LANDS WANTED
FOR EX-SOLDIERS

Government Planning to Purchase Big Tract and Colonize Former Vocational Students.

Announcement was made Monday that the United States government is now considering Georgia as a suitable place in which to secure a tract of land ranging in size from 500 to 2,000 acres to be subdivided into small farms and sold on easy payments to former soldiers who have undergone vocational training. Dr. W. J. Quick, special agent of the government, and M. Bryson, district officer in charge of vocational training work, put the proposition before the Atlanta chamber of commerce, and the chamber will appoint a committee to receive offers from land owners anywhere in Georgia.

Mr. Quick stated that the purpose of the plan was two-fold: first, to colonize veterans of the world war, and second, to assist them in gaining a fresh start. The government will aid the men in many ways by furnishing them with expert advice, medical attention, and by giving them trucks, tractors and other farm implements.

Such colonies have already been established in several states, the plan in each case having been productive of the best results. The idea of those promoting the project is to have some fifty or more farms situated on one large tract, rather than the scattering here and there of small tracts throughout the state.

Any one having such a tract is invited to get in touch with the chamber of commerce. The land should be near a railroad and close to a good highway. It was pointed out that thousands of former soldiers are at present undergoing a course of agricultural training and are eager to become owners of farms. During the period of rehabilitation, these men are paid from $100 to $135 per month by the government. Many are saving this money for the purpose of buying land.

With the aid and encouragement of the national government in their plans, it is thought the establishment of such a project offering them the chance they have long sought to become farm owners will be eagerly taken advantage of by ex-soldiers throughout the state. The farmers will be bought by individual farmers, and it was estimated that an easy payment plan will be devised whereby those desiring to buy can do so by paying one-fifth in cash and the remainder in installments.

PARDON FOR DEBS
NOT CONSIDERED
FOR SOME WEEKS

Washington, June 7.—Recommendations of the department of justice to President Harding on the question of granting a pardon to Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader now serving a prison sentence at Atlanta, for violation of the espionage law, may contain the department's views on general amnesty for all prisoners confined under those laws, Attorney-General Daugherty said today. The recommendations, however, are not expected to be submitted for several weeks.

ATLANTA IN LEAD
IN P. O. RECEIPTS

Only One City in 50 Has Better Record, Thus Showing Improvement in Business.

Business conditions in Atlanta are better than those in fifty of the largest cities in the country, with one exception, according to comparative postal receipts, the figures showing that Atlanta receipts for May last year increased over those of May last year 0.94 per cent while in the other cities an average decrease of 1.42 per cent was shown. The figures were made public Tuesday afternoon by Postmaster George C. Rogers. Postal receipts are considered in commercial circles as good barometers of business conditions and the fact that Atlanta's receipts showed increases while those in virtually all of the large cities in the country showed decreases is taken as an indication that general business here is much better than in the other cities.

Only two other cities in the south besides Atlanta showed increases for May this year over May last year, these being Richmond, with an increase of 9.88 per cent and Memphis with an increase of 0.89 per cent.

This is the first month of this year that the Atlanta office has shown an increase over the same month last year. Postmaster Rogers said. "The decreases in the Atlanta office early in the year, however, were slight, the percentage of decrease being only 0.94 per cent."

Murphy Candler Shows How W. & A. Has Been Money-Maker.

On an investment of $5,160,000 in the Western and Atlantic railroad, completed in 1851, the state of Georgia will have received at the expiration of the present lease of this line, a total of approximately $50,000,000 net income, Chairman C. Murphy Candler, of the state railroad commission, declared Tuesday before the members of the Atlanta chapter, American Society of Civil Engineers, at a luncheon given in the Daffodil cafe.

Mr. Candler was invited as the

Out on the Chattahoochee river as freely as the waters of Georgia's famous stream.

But no one in Atlanta paid the champagne any attention. They were thrilled, enthralled and flabbergasted by a new invention that was at work on the river.

That was a startling condition, but The Constitution will tell you about it in a new feature that starts June 13.

OIL INSPECTION
FEES ATTACKED

Second Suit Filed, and Decision Adverse to the State Will Endanger All Special Taxes.

With the appeal of the Texas Oil company against the constitutionality of the state oil law still pending in the United States supreme court and approximately $50,000 in inspection fees enjoined from payment into the treasury as a result, Attorney-General R. A. Denny received notification Tuesday afternoon that the Dunham Oil company, of Georgia, has instituted similar proceedings in the Fulton superior court.

The suit was filed against Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown, State Oil Inspector Marvin P. Roane, Treasurer W. J. Speer and Russell Shirley, who are enjoined from paying into the treasury any inspection fees collected from the company. Commissioner Brown will act as trustee of the fund and will be required to give bond.

Following the agitation several weeks ago to place a heavier tax on gasoline and kerosene, a number of oil companies in Georgia threatened to take action against the validity of the state oil law on the ground that the present fees charged for inspection are excessive and in conflict with the commerce clause of the United States constitution.

This suit is the first to be filed following these developments. As

CLOSE OF DANCES
AT MIDNIGHT HOUR

Resolutions Are Passed Barring From Floor All Persons Under Influence of Liquors.

BAN ON AUTO RIDES
AFTER DANCE IS OVER

Concurrence of Colleges, Fraternities and Clubs Given at Meeting Held Tuesday.

BY LOUISE DOOLY.

Aroused by reports of occurrences at recent dances given for the young social set, more than four hundred representative men and women, at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's club, passed resolutions designed to put an end to the all-night dance, to stop the practice of liquor drinking at entertainments, and to bar automobile rides in the early morning hours.

A sensational feature of the meeting was the statement that bootleggers of the city have grown so bold in their actions that they have been stopping the cars of young men on their way to entertainments to offer whiskey for sale, and that the Pan Hellenic societies of Georgia Tech have hired detectives to bar liquor dealers from the grounds at the places where their dances are being held.

Representatives of colleges, fraternities, clubs and dance halls were present, and unanimously promised their co-operation in the efforts of the mothers to see to it that their sons and daughters get home at a reasonable hour, and that no intoxicated persons be allowed upon the ballroom floor.

Mayor Key promised the co-operation of the city, heartily commending the movement, but warned those present that the chief responsibility rested upon the parents, and not upon the officers of the law.

Plan of Action.

The following plan of action, stated in resolutions, was agreed upon.

To close all dances for the young people at 12 o'clock; to allow no one on the floor under the influence of intoxicants;

POLICE OFFICERS
SAY KEY'S VETO
WILL SAVE JOBS

Supporters Are Jubilant Over Statement Given Out by Mayor in Defense of Beavers.

REORGANIZATION PLAN WILL NOT BE KILLED

Men Who Enter Next Primaries Will Be Put on Record as to Position They Will Take.

A declaration by Mayor Key before the opening session of the South-eastern Shoe Retailers' convention, which city hall politicians assert is tantamount to an announcement that he will veto the findings of council's special committee even if adopted by council, which recommended reorganization of the police department, yesterday changed the aspect of the police situation.

In this declaration the police officers involved see a definite assurance that they will hold their jobs, despite the fact that three grand juries have declared them either incompetent or venal and a special committee right from city hall, where they are supposed to be politically entrenched, made findings even more drastic than those of the grand juries.

The position is taken that after all, the jobs and the control of the police department are the things at stake and that if both are retained before the primaries as to whether or not he favors police reorganization along the lines suggested by council's special committee, and called for by three grand juries.

These conditions prevailing, the police are not disposed to make any vigorous fight to keep council from ratifying the committee report—should there be any hope of their achieving this end. They are firm in the assurance of the mayor's veto and they are likewise assured that two-thirds of council cannot be mustered to vote to override the veto of the executive.

Whereas, as Chief Beavers expressed it, "we will continue to operate the police department to the best of our ability as we have in the past."

There were ample assurances, though, that the police reorganization plan would not die from the stroke of the mayor's veto. Within three or four months primaries will be held in every ward and it is now planned to put every candidate for alderman and councilman on record before the primaries as to whether or not he favors police reorganization along the lines suggested by council's special committee, and called for by three grand juries.

Political Buncoers.

The mayor's declaration was to the effect that Floyd Woodward's bunco band was not the only organization of bunco artists operating in Atlanta. He intimated that the other band of buncoers he referred to had politics as their objective. "And I'm going to see that the people of Atlanta don't suffer through their operations," he asserted.

No intimation was given Tuesday that the board of police commissioners would take any official cognizance of the report of the special committee until after it had been formally put up to that body by council. In view of the fact that the mayor's veto would stop the recommendations before they leave council, the board would remain in official ignorance of the findings if they do not go officially to it.

Mayor's Statement.

"We've had a lot of bunco around Atlanta," the mayor told the Southern Shoe Retailers' association at its meeting Tuesday. "I guess you've read a lot about it. The fact that the chief of police is a fine, upright Christian gentleman, and that he's incompetent and should be removed. I want to tell you that so long as I have anything to do with it, we are going to keep that fine, upright Christian gentleman right where he is. That's the way I feel about it, and there are not enough agencies between here and hell to make me change my mind."

State Department Addresses Communication to Mexican People in Preference to Rulers.

OBREGON RECOGNITION
DEPENDS ON SIGNING

If Present Administration Will Not Accept Treaty, Will Wait Until Government Comes Which Will.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 7.—The United States government has proposed to the Mexican people that the two nations enter into a treaty of commerce and amity such as will stabilize their relations and terminate the protracted period of mutual distrust.

The treaty, now the subject of negotiations between the two governments, would embody assurances by Mexico to safeguard American property rights, establish a claims commission to settle losses of life and property, provide for settlement of boundary matters and, finally, would include conventional stipulations as to commerce and reciprocal rights in both countries.

In announcing its advances, the state department made it clear it was talking to Mexico as a nation and not alone to the Obregon regime. The question of recognition should be subordinated, the administration believes. It hopes for an immediate restoration of cordial relations with Mexico and is willing to negotiate the treaty in question with Obregon if he will abide by the provisions suggested. If Obregon refuses to accept the suggested terms this government will simply wait until there is a government in Mexico willing to bind itself to the discharge of primary international obligations.

The Stumbling Block.

The whole difficulty in the path of a satisfactory settlement is embraced in the Mexican constitution of 1917. This declared that subterranean resources were the property of the nation. The nationalization clause was aimed at the oil wealth of the country and if applied retroactively would be tantamount to confiscation of property acquired by Americans previous to 1917. That the laws permitted of such retroactive application was shown in the executive decrees issued by the late President Carranza and supporting the policy of confiscation.

The American state department looks at the situation this way:

1. If Mexico proposes to confiscate American property, this government will not stand by and permit it.

2. If Mexico says the objectionable laws are not intended for confiscatory application, this government believes Mexico should enter into a solemn obligation as a condition to the re-establishment of friendly intercourse.

Want Definite Settlement.

There cannot well be any straddling of the question as Washington looks at it. Continued possibility of a satisfactory settlement is embraced in the Mexican constitution of 1917. This declared that subterranean resources were the property of the nation. The nationalization clause was aimed at the oil wealth of the country and if applied retroactively would be tantamount to confiscation of property acquired by Americans previous to 1917. That the laws permitted of such retroactive application was shown in the executive decrees issued by the late President Carranza and supporting the policy of confiscation.

JOHNSON WILL NOT RUN FOR SPEAKER

Cecil Neill and J. H. Ennis Are Now Leading Candidates for Place in the House.

With the retirement of M. L. Johnson, of Bartow county, from the speakership race in the house of representatives Tuesday night, Cecil Neill, of Muscogee, and J. H. Ennis, of Baldwin, were left as the two leading candidates, George H. Caraway having withdrawn last Saturday.

Stating that he was unable to make a "county to county" campaign for his election as the other two candidates are now doing, Mr. Johnson said that his continuance in the race would be unjust both to his friends and himself. His withdrawal was announced with a formal statement.

"This is my withdrawal from the race for speaker of the next house of representatives of Georgia," reads the statement.

"Several of the candidates have been making a personal county to county canvass of the members. This I cannot and am not willing to do. It is unfair to my friends and unjust to myself to remain in the race under these conditions."

"I shall serve Georgia to the best of my ability on the floor of the house and elsewhere. Georgia at all times, and especially at present, deserves the best we can give her. Men, measures, issues and rights should be passed on according to merit without fear or favor and without consideration of past factions to rebuild the greatness of the state—this, every true son of the state deserves," the statement concludes.

SHOE REPAIRERS DISCUSS CLOSING EARLY WEDNESDAY

The recently formed Atlanta Shoe Repairers' association held a smoker Tuesday night in the town hall of the Chamber of Commerce building at which new members were enrolled and a number of resolutions discussed, and finally tabled to come up at the next meeting of the organization on the third Tuesday in July.

Chief among the resolutions was one providing for the closing on Wednesday afternoons, during the summer months, of all shoe repair shops in the city represented in the association. Favorable comment greeted the suggestion, but it was not to become a positive action because of the fact that a number of the larger shops were not represented. Members concurred in the suggestion that some action should be taken to obtain the cooperation of jobbers and wholesale leather dealers in getting them to agree not to sell leather in repair quantities at wholesale prices to those desiring it for half-selling purposes, claiming this injured the repairers' business.

VETERAN OF 60'S CELEBRATES HIS 87TH BIRTHDAY

One of the most interesting incidents of General Sherman's siege of Atlanta is now being celebrated in the city. E. C. Murphy, veteran of the war between the states and pioneer Atlanta citizen, celebrated his 87th birthday anniversary.

Mr. Murphy was the principal figure in the incident which almost cost him his life. During Sherman's advance on Atlanta, Mr. Murphy was on duty as a sentinel and stood on one of the principal streets.

He declared "Next fall our nation will be in a better condition than at any time since the world war. You cannot break an agricultural country and I want to tell you now I have never seen fields better tilled than the more people at work in them than at present."

Mr. Orr, who is one of Cincinnati's leading business men and one of the most prominent figures in the shoe industry in America, spoke with much enthusiasm over the future prospects of the shoe business.

"General conditions in the shoe trade throughout the entire country are growing better and there is not a single thing that suggests that there will be any recession in our business within the near future," he said.

FILM STAR GUEST AT LION SESSION; DELEGATES NAMED

Miss Zena Keefe, popular screen star of the Selznick company, who is visiting the Atlanta public for a few days, was guest of honor at the regular weekly luncheon of the Lions' club Tuesday in the grill room in the Piedmont hotel.

Miss Keefe made a few brief remarks on picture production, after which it was announced that she will attend the baseball game at Piedmont park this afternoon, when the Lions' team and the team of the Atlanta business college clash.

Delegates to attend the Lions' national convention, to be held this month at Oakland, Cal., were named, and a list of candidates for 1932-33 executive officers of the local club was submitted to members and will be voted on at the next meeting.

"People wonder whether or not we speak a dialogue when a production is being made," Miss Keefe told the meeting. "Of course we do; the dialogue is necessary to obtain the proper effect as in any drama. Fancy a performance of 'Hedda Gabler' without dialogue! The artist must speak his part to appropriately portray the emotions."

The following delegates were named to attend the Oakland convention: Ed Bond, chairman; Victor L. Todd, W. L. Mathers and J. R. Smith.

SPEED RECORD MADE IN PROHIBITION CASES

A large number of violators of the federal prohibition law were tried and convicted Tuesday before United States Judge William B. Sheppard, of Florida, one of the four federal judges holding court in Atlanta this week. New speed records were made in the disposition of the cases. Fines ranged from $50 to $500.

One of the men convicted was Fred Sullivan, who was characterized by Federal Prohibition agent D. J. Gantt as "the most notorious liquor hauler in north Georgia." He was fined $500 and elected to go to jail. Recently he was fined $500 in state courts after he had been caught with 70 gallons of liquor.

Plan Appointment Of Women Tonight On City Committee

The city democratic executive committee of forty-four members, four from each ward, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the council chamber at the city hall.

Chairman J. P. Haunson and other members of the committee plan to enlarge the membership to sixty-six by creating two more places in each ward, naming women to fill them. They will become members the first time by appointment, the present delegations nominating in the respective wards, the committee confirming and the other chairman making the appointment. Thereafter women will have to run for election at the primary just as the men do.

If the plan is adopted and women are chosen at the meeting the committee is expected to set a date for another meeting within the next few days and adjourn.

In the meantime the women will be notified of their appointment and the chairman will then call the full committee together to plan for the primary.

AMOROUS IS NAMED TO ACT FOR FARMERS

Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers union, has appointed Martin F. Amorous, of Marietta, to represent the Farmers' union and the national board of farm organizations at an important conference of agricultural leaders to be held at the department of commerce, in Washington, on Monday, June 12. The most important matter to be considered is a plan that has been developed for giving farm products better storage facilities and improving the present methods of issuing warehouse receipts so as to increase the borrowing power of growers. The chief product to be considered in this connection is grain, but the handling of cotton and all other agricultural products also will have a bearing on the conference.

Several of the candidates have been making a personal county to county canvass of the members. This I cannot and am not willing to do. It is unfair to my friends and unjust to myself to remain in the race under these conditions."

"I shall serve Georgia to the best of my ability on the floor of the house and elsewhere. Georgia at all times, and especially at present, deserves the best we can give her. Mr. Orr, who is one of Cincinnati's leading business men and one of the most prominent figures in the shoe industry in America, spoke with much enthusiasm over the future prospects of the shoe business.

"General conditions in the shoe trade throughout the entire country are growing better and there is not a single thing that suggests that there will be any recession in our business within the near future," he said.

Miss Zena Keefe, popular screen star of the Selznick company, who is visiting the Atlanta public for a few days, was guest of honor at the regular weekly luncheon of the Lions' club Tuesday in the grill room in the Piedmont hotel.

Miss Keefe made a few brief remarks on picture production, after which it was announced that she will attend the baseball game at Piedmont park this afternoon, when the Lions' team and the team of the Atlanta business college clash.

Delegates to attend the Lions' national convention, to be held this month at Oakland, Cal., were named, and a list of candidates for 1932-33 executive officers of the local club was submitted to members and will be voted on at the next meeting.

"People wonder whether or not we speak a dialogue when a production is being made," Miss Keefe told the meeting. "Of course we do; the dialogue is necessary to obtain the proper effect as in any drama. Fancy a performance of 'Hedda Gabler' without dialogue! The artist must speak his part to appropriately portray the emotions."

The following delegates were named to attend the Oakland convention: Ed Bond, chairman; Victor L. Todd, W. L. Mathers and J. R. Smith.

A large number of violators of the federal prohibition law were tried and convicted Tuesday before United States Judge William B. Sheppard, of Florida, one of the four federal judges holding court in Atlanta this week. New speed records were made in the disposition of the cases. Fines ranged from $50 to $500.

One of the men convicted was Fred Sullivan, who was characterized by Federal Prohibition agent D. J. Gantt as "the most notorious liquor hauler in north Georgia." He was fined $500 and elected to go to jail. Recently he was fined $500 in state courts after he had been caught with 70 gallons of liquor.

election at the primary just as the men do.

If the plan is adopted and women are chosen at the meeting the committee is expected to set a date for another meeting within the next few days and adjourn.

In the meantime the women will be notified of their appointment and the chairman will then call the full committee together to plan for the primary.

Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers union, has appointed Martin F. Amorous, of Marietta, to represent the Farmers' union and the national board of farm organizations at an important conference of agricultural leaders to be held at the department of commerce, in Washington, on Monday, June 12. The most important matter to be considered is a plan that has been developed for giving farm products better storage facilities and improving the present methods of issuing warehouse receipts so as to increase the borrowing power of growers. The chief product to be considered in this connection is grain, but the handling of cotton and all other agricultural products also will have a bearing on the conference.

Several of the candidates have been making a personal county to county canvass of the members. This I cannot and am not willing to do. It is unfair to my friends and unjust to myself to remain in the race under these conditions."

"I shall serve Georgia to the best of my ability on the floor of the house and elsewhere. Georgia at all times, and especially at present, deserves the best we can give her. Men, measures, issues and rights should be passed on according to merit without fear or favor and without consideration of past factions to rebuild the greatness of the state—this, every true son of the state deserves," the statement concludes.

The recently formed Atlanta Shoe Repairers' association held a smoker Tuesday night in the town hall of the Chamber of Commerce building at which new members were enrolled and a number of resolutions discussed, and finally tabled to come up at the next meeting of the organization on the third Tuesday in July.

Chief among the resolutions was one providing for the closing on Wednesday afternoons, during the summer months, of all shoe repair shops in the city represented in the association. Favorable comment greeted the suggestion, but it was not to become a positive action because of the fact that a number of the larger shops were not represented. Members concurred in the suggestion that some action should be taken to obtain the cooperation of jobbers and wholesale leather dealers in getting them to agree not to sell leather in repair quantities at wholesale prices to those desiring it for half-selling purposes, claiming this injured the repairers' business.

One of the most interesting incidents of General Sherman's siege of Atlanta is now being celebrated in the city. E. C. Murphy, veteran of the war between the states and pioneer Atlanta citizen, celebrated his 87th birthday anniversary.

Mr. Murphy was the principal figure in the incident which almost cost him his life. During Sherman's advance on Atlanta, Mr. Murphy was on duty as a sentinel and stood on one of the principal streets.

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN RATE HEARING

Final arguments were submitted Tuesday afternoon in the United States court in the injunction motion filed for aid for St. John's Aiken railway and Electric corporation in an effort to restrain the Georgia Railway and Electric corporation from enforcing its order fixing street car and electric light rates of that corporation. The case was taken under advisement by Federal judges Samuel Henry, Henry D. Clayton and William H. Jackson and Boykin.

Arguments for the company were made by J. Prince Webster, of Atlanta; for the city, by E. M. Price, rate expert of the commission. Judge Hines was assisted in the preparation of the case by E. M. Price, rate expert of the commission. James A. Perry was the only member of the commission present at the hearing.

The Augusta company is seeking to obtain a temporary and permanent injunction against the commission to restrain it from enforcing its order fixing rates. The company also seeks to have a writ of habeas corpus issued to restrain the commission from interfering with its street car service. The company wants a 10-cent rate.

The hearing in court declined to admit as evidence about thirty affidavits presented by Archibald Blackshear, city attorney of Augusta, to the effect that the street railway property of the company is in a state of disrepair and is irregularly carried out, and that service is poor. The court ruled that only evidence touching the value of the property and the return on the investment could be introduced.

The company sought to show that its property has a valuation of $5,000,000, while the state railroad commission contended that the valuation is $5,200,000. The commission sought also to show that the service of the company in its street car system was not worth more than a 1-cent fare.

The company's valuation was based on 1920 unit cost prices and a decision on this phase of the case will have an important bearing on other utility companies' rate cases.

MAYOR OF SEATTLE ADDRESSES KIWANIS

Pledging his support to Atlanta Kiwanians in their efforts to bring the 1922 convention of the International Kiwanis association of the world to the city, Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell of Seattle, Wash., delivered a rousing address at the club luncheon given at noon Tuesday in the Peacock cafe. He also gave some practical advice for the campaign. Mr. Caldwell was introduced as the most prominent man of the northwest and a loyal Kiwanian. Two tickets to the 1921 convention, to take place at Cleveland at the last of the month, were raffled off, and Henry Heinz donated a third ticket to make the raffle interesting. Winners were George West, George Brown and J. Sid Garner. It was stated that already 56 Atlanta Kiwanians have pledged to go to the convention, and a somewhat larger number from the state are at large pledged to go in the same company. "Jerry" Waaser, of Macon, general superintendent of the Southern railroad, who is going along with the Atlantians, promises the best service the road can afford. W. T. Gaines, supreme lecturer of the Order of Moose, spoke in behalf of the movement to establish a new orphanage of this order, which is to be located somewhere in the southeast. He said that if Atlanta really wants this institution it can win it.

Appeal For Y. W. C. A.
Mrs. Howard Bucknell, vice president of the local Y. W. C. A., who was accompanied by Mrs. Willie P. Hill and Mrs. Charles Schlemmer, made a touching appeal for help in support of the Y. W. C. A. home, after which a ham was raffled off in behalf of the cause, falling to Henry Muench.

Mayor Caldwell, the principal speaker at the luncheon, was a caller at the office of Mayor James L. Key Tuesday afternoon. The two chatted for half an hour, during which Mayor Key pled his quest with many questions about Seattle's ownership and operation of her public utilities.

The Seattle executive told the mayor that the street car and electric system had been "unloaded" on the city, and a municipal investigation is quietly under way.

Favors Commission.
Although serving under a representative councilman form of government, the mayor is an advocate of commission form, and stated that in his annual message, which is now in the hands of the printer, he has recommended a change to commission government.

Mayor Caldwell explained that Seattle possesses utilities worth about $10,000,000. Their operation is suffering from lack of centralized authority and control, he said, and a term as mayor has convinced him that lost motion and conflict of power must be eliminated if the people are to have the best return from their government.

The visiting mayor spoke with pride of Seattle's school system in contrast to Atlanta's 22 per cent of income apportioned to schools. He said that the school system of his city receives more money for operation and maintenance than is apportioned to all other departments combined.

Harding and Leaders Of Forestry Invited To Local Congress

An elaborate program is being planned for the meeting of the national foresters from the Appalachian, South Atlantic and Gulf states to be held in Atlanta on June 14, when protection of forests from fire, classification of lands, reforestation of cut-over lands, national state forests, etc., will be thoroughly discussed with a view toward general improvement of agriculture. G. Harding, Secretary of Agriculture, Wallace and several United States senators interested in such subjects are being personally invited to attend the conference.

The meeting, which is planned to make the largest and most important forestry convention ever held in the south, will be staged at the Hotel Piedmont.

Forestry experts of national and world reputations are being invited to participate in the program. Among the invited guests are: J. H. Pruss, Chapin Hill, N. C.; secretary, J. S. Holmes, Chapin Hill, N. C.; chief secretary, R. D. Forbes, superintendent of forestry, New Orleans, La.; chairman, Atlanta forestry state of Georgia, B. H. Stone, Blairville.

ROTARIANS TO GIVE AD CLUB LUNCHEON

Greetings and good fellowship of Atlanta Rotarians will be extended to visitors to the International Ad club convention next week. At the request of LeRoy Rogers at the club luncheon Tuesday at the Piedmont hotel, the Rotarians offered their automobiles, their rivalry in golf and their personal welcome to the visitors.

In addition to this entertainment by individual members, the club voted to have a special luncheon next Tuesday at which Rotarians among the convention visitors will be guests of the club. This was decided by unanimous vote after the motion had been made by Earl Cone.

At the request of LeRoy Rogers at the club luncheon Tuesday at the Piedmont hotel, the Rotarians offered their automobiles, their rivalry in golf and their personal welcome to the visitors.

In addition to this entertainment by individual members, the club voted to have a special luncheon next Tuesday at which Rotarians among the convention visitors will be guests of the club. This was decided by unanimous vote after the motion had been made by Earl Cone.

An appeal for aid for St. John's Aiken railway and Electric corporation in an effort to restrain the Georgia Railway and Electric corporation from enforcing its order fixing street car and electric light rates of that corporation. The case was taken under advisement by Federal judges Samuel Henry, Henry D. Clayton and William H. Jackson and Boykin.

Arguments for the company were made by J. Prince Webster, of Atlanta; for the city, by E. M. Price, rate expert of the commission. Judge Hines was assisted in the preparation of the case by E. M. Price, rate expert of the commission. James A. Perry was the only member of the commission present at the hearing.

The Augusta company is seeking to obtain a temporary and permanent injunction against the commission to restrain it from enforcing its order fixing rates. The company also seeks to have a writ of habeas corpus issued to restrain the commission from interfering with its street car service. The company wants a 10-cent rate.

The hearing in court declined to admit as evidence about thirty affidavits presented by Archibald Blackshear, city attorney of Augusta, to the effect that the street railway property of the company is in a state of disrepair and is irregularly carried out, and that service is poor. The court ruled that only evidence touching the value of the property and the return on the investment could be introduced.

The company sought to show that its property has a valuation of $5,000,000, while the state railroad commission contended that the valuation is $5,200,000. The commission sought also to show that the service of the company in its street car system was not worth more than a 1-cent fare.

The company's valuation was based on 1920 unit cost prices and a decision on this phase of the case will have an important bearing on other utility companies' rate cases.

MAYOR OF SEATTLE ADDRESSES KIWANIS

Pledging his support to Atlanta Kiwanians in their efforts to bring the 1922 convention of the International Kiwanis association of the world to the city, Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell of Seattle, Wash., delivered a rousing address at the club luncheon given at noon Tuesday in the Peacock cafe. He also gave some practical advice for the campaign. Mr. Caldwell was introduced as the most prominent man of the northwest and a loyal Kiwanian. Two tickets to the 1921 convention, to take place at Cleveland at the last of the month, were raffled off, and Henry Heinz donated a third ticket to make the raffle interesting. Winners were George West, George Brown and J. Sid Garner. It was stated that already 56 Atlanta Kiwanians have pledged to go to the convention, and a somewhat larger number from the state are at large pledged to go in the same company. "Jerry" Waaser, of Macon, general superintendent of the Southern railroad, who is going along with the Atlantians, promises the best service the road can afford. W. T. Gaines, supreme lecturer of the Order of Moose, spoke in behalf of the movement to establish a new orphanage of this order, which is to be located somewhere in the southeast. He said that if Atlanta really wants this institution it can win it.

Appeal For Y. W. C. A.
Mrs. Howard Bucknell, vice president of the local Y. W. C. A., who was accompanied by Mrs. Willie P. Hill and Mrs. Charles Schlemmer, made a touching appeal for help in support of the Y. W. C. A. home, after which a ham was raffled off in behalf of the cause, falling to Henry Muench.

Mayor Caldwell, the principal speaker at the luncheon, was a caller at the office of Mayor James L. Key Tuesday afternoon. The two chatted for half an hour, during which Mayor Key pled his quest with many questions about Seattle's ownership and operation of her public utilities.

The Seattle executive told the mayor that the street car and electric system had been "unloaded" on the city, and a municipal investigation is quietly under way.

Favors Commission.
Although serving under a representative councilman form of government, the mayor is an advocate of commission form, and stated that in his annual message, which is now in the hands of the printer, he has recommended a change to commission government.

Mayor Caldwell explained that Seattle possesses utilities worth about $10,000,000. Their operation is suffering from lack of centralized authority and control, he said, and a term as mayor has convinced him that lost motion and conflict of power must be eliminated if the people are to have the best return from their government.

The visiting mayor spoke with pride of Seattle's school system in contrast to Atlanta's 22 per cent of income apportioned to schools. He said that the school system of his city receives more money for operation and maintenance than is apportioned to all other departments combined.

WATSON ATTACKS BIG ARMY PLANS

Georgia Senator Scores Administration and President in Speech Crowded With Satire.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN,
Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, June 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The administration's program for a bigger army was opposed this afternoon in the senate, when Senator Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, took part in the debate on the army bill, providing for an appropriation of $355,000,000 and a minimum army of 170,000 in time of peace.

The provision for 170,000 strength finally carried, however, by a margin of four votes.

Senator Watson said that the only purpose of such a huge military establishment was to intimidate the laboring people of this country and make them the pawns of powerful interests.

Arraigns Republicans.

The Georgia senator spoke at length against the bill, severely arraigning republican leaders for abandoning their promises to the people during the last campaign, and informing them that they would have to face the people again at a date none too soon. He declared that it was very evident that the administration had no fixed policy except that of spending money, and instead of cutting expenditures, as promised in last year's elections, they were increasing them with "howling rapacity," that they had granted increases to navy, army and civil establishments and their program added enormous burdens to the taxpayers of the country.

Senator Watson declared that a large army was not compatible with democratic principles. He mentioned the governments of Great Britain, France, Germany and Japan, and expressed his firm conviction that none of those powers had the "war fever," and that if either of them, or any other combination of them, attacked this country such attack would end in complete failure, because of our immense resources, natural defenses and the spirit of the American soldier and sailor.

Scores England.

The Georgian reviewed world conditions, referring to Great Britain as a "tottering empire held together by bayonets," and said that it was necessary for England to use 100,000 troops in Ireland to "preserve order," and that it was only a question of time before England would be compelled to abandon her cruel military government in Ireland.

He scored France for using negro troops on the Rhine and turning "savages upon the white women of Germany."

Senator Wadsworth stated during Watson's discussion of the army bill, that unless the general staff had a force of at least 170,000 it would not be possible to hold our army together.

Senator Watson declared that Wellington had less than 65,000 men when he crushed Napoleon at Waterloo, and neither Lee, Jackson, Grant nor Sherman ever commanded an army of more than 75,000 men, and that any great captain could organize an army for peace times, with less than the number of men proposed by the pending bill.

Senator Wadsworth said that a large standing army was necessary to preserve order.

Senator Watson asked where the federal government got the power, under the constitution, to police the states. He said that the federal government had no right to police Georgia, New York, Wisconsin, Missouri, or Ohio, where all these wise men come from.

Terms to Satire.

Enumerating the economy and peace pledges made by the republican party in the last campaign, the Georgia senator added: "We have been here three months. The 'clear-headed gentleman from Ohio' has been in power three months. What has been done? We have seen one vision arise and then another. We have heard one good little speech and then another. But all we have learned is that the Ten Commandments still remain in force and that twelve times twelve still equals 144."

"One of the statements of Candidate Harding," continued Senator Watson, "was 'Away from the league and back to the constitution.' Today we are nearer the league and farther from the constitution."

Houser to Convention.

Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta convention bureau, has announced his intention of attending the national convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Dallas, Texas, on June 16-18. Mr. Houser will go armed with data to present on Atlanta's facilities as a convention city with a view to securing the 1922 convention of the Junior Chamber in this city.

OFFICERS OF SCHOOLS WILL BE NAMED TODAY

This afternoon a novel scene will be enacted at the meeting of the board of education, when the board will be called on to confirm nominations of the superintendent and the superintendent-elect of schools, but the nominations will not conflict.

Superintendent of Schools W. F. Dykes, who will retire from office on July 1, will nominate all the principals and teachers who will serve the school during the next twelve-month period. Prof. W. A. Sutton, who will succeed Superintendent Dykes, will name the administrative officers, all supervisors and directors and clerks in the department.

Only one important change in the personnel of the system is slated. Mr. Sutton will nominate H. R. Hunter, head of the department of history at Tech High school, to become assistant superintendent and business manager to succeed R. C. Little. Mr. Hunter has been a member of the faculty of the Tech High and is highly regarded.

If the board confirms Mr. Dykes' nominations there will be no change in the personnel of the high schools, except, of course, Tech High where a successor to Mr. Sutton must be elected. For this place it is understood that W. O. Cheney, assistant principal of Tech High, will be named. Mr. Dykes will nominate for re-election H. O. Smith, principal of Boys' High; Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls' High, and Mrs. Annie T. Wise, principal of Commercial High. There will be few, if any, changes in the list of grammar school teachers.

DISMISSAL IS ORDER OF ACID GARNISHMENT

Judge John T. Pendleton, in the superior court Tuesday, signed an order dismissing the garnishment proceedings growing out of the suit for $10,000 damages brought by Mrs. Gladys Pressnell against Mrs. J. M. Rolader upon a petition of Attorney Hewlett and Dennis, representing garnishees, who contend that garnishment would not stick in the case.

Mrs. Pressnell sued Mrs. Rolader, following the throwing of acid on the former, by the latter at the Strand Theatre Tuesday evening. Mrs. Pressnell undertook to get control by garnishment of $5,000 Mrs. Rolader recovered from B. J. Rolader and J. R. Bennett, former lessees of the Stag hotel, for injuries sustained in a fall. Besides Rolader and Bennett, John S. Highsmith and Hewlett and Dennis, lawyers, were garnishees. It being claimed they held part of the funds.

OFFICIALS ARE CITED IN INJUNCTION CASE

An order was signed by Judge John T. Pendleton Thursday citing W. S. Richardson, county tax collector, and J. I. Lowry, sheriff, to show cause June 15 why they should not be enjoined from enforcing levy and sale for taxes of property at 50-50 Bond Street belonging to the Gate City Guards.

A tax $1.00 for the property was issued May 14. Until June 18 the levy is enjoined, in the order obtained Tuesday by Peter F. Clarke, receiver for the property.

A DISGRACEFUL ROW.

The protracted rivalry between instrumentalities ostensibly operating for the development and promotion of agriculture in Georgia has degenerated into a political caterwauling that is a disgrace to the state and a detriment to its interests.

For weeks the newspapers have been flooded and the mails cluttered with propaganda and attacks emanating from the State Bureau of Markets, representing the state department of agriculture, on the one hand, and from the Farm Bureau Federation, representing the State Agricultural college, on the other, each organization hurling charges and counter charges against the other.

Some of this matter almost skirts the border-line of indecency, so bitter is the personal hatred that characterizes this lurid controversy.

Here are two organizations whose fundamental aims and broad objectives are identical.

The purpose of each is to promote the agricultural welfare of the state and to help the farmers of Georgia individually and collectively.

They ought to be working and pulling together, in absolute harmony and accord, each helping to strengthen and build up the other as a means of strengthening and developing the state.

But instead of doing that both are wasting valuable time and energy and money that belongs to the public and that should be expended in the promotion of Georgia's rural welfare.

The Constitution has taken no side in this controversy.

Its inclination is, rather, to say: "A plague on both your houses!" Those responsible for this disgraceful campaign of fishwife spitefulness and abuse ought to be ashamed of themselves!

Certainly they ought to be putting their energies and talents to better use.

And in saying this we believe we are voicing the sentiment of a great majority of the people of Georgia.

IN HANDS OF MOTHERS.

The practicability of calling women to jury service is being tested in a new and significant way in the Paris, Ill., case of a young unmarried woman charged with the abandonment of her newborn babe which, it is alleged, was subsequently found dead from exposure.

To the jury, empaneled by the county coroner, is left the question of whether or not the mother, abandoned by her false lover, is to be held responsible to the law for her nameless child's death.

The coroner, after going into the merits of the case to the best of his ability, confessed a lack of confidence in his own or any other man's judgment in determining the proper course to pursue in reaching a verdict for, he said, "the evidence in this case requires the deliberation of women, and particularly of mothers!"

"Under these circumstances," the official announced—

"I do not believe a man is competent to judge. I have appointed a jury of mothers and I know their verdict will serve justice's ends."

The procedure and the verdict of the twelve "good women and true"—each a mother—into whose hands the fate of this forlorn mother was placed by the law will be watched with interest; and should be enlightening.

It may be that this coroner has pioneered the way to an entirely new and fruitful service for women in our judicial processes.

In almost every term of criminal court anywhere in the country cases are tried in which it may be the ends of justice could be better served by women than by better composed of men—peculiar cases involving motherhood and children; cases that require the mother's peculiar judgment and that only a mother can understand.

In many states women have for years done jury duty serving, however, with men on the same panel.

It is possible that this Illinois coroner has established a useful precedent that could be followed with profit and to the enhancement of the spirit of strict justice, irrespective of the technicalities of the law, in all courts in which the welfare and happiness of human beings are put at stake, dependent upon the verdict of twelve other human beings.

It's the vacation season, and the cost of living is coming down to see what the country looks like.

U.S. TO SEND HELP TO FLOOD DISTRICT

Washington, June 7.—Help of the federal government will be extended to flood sufferers in the United States.

The state legislature rushed through a resolution offered by Senator Phipps, of Colorado, authorizing the war department to use its facilities in providing relief. Leaders promise prompt action in the house.

The resolution does not carry an appropriation, although it has been estimated that the state might ask for $1,000,000. Senator Phipps explained that it was impossible at this time to ascertain how much will be required. Phipps, with Senator Nicholson and Representative Hardy, discussed the situation in Pueblo with President Harding before the resolution was introduced, and was assured that the war department is in position to be of immediate assistance. Food, clothing, army stores, medical supplies and arms will be sent to the stricken area.

The National Red Cross, following the appeal for aid by President Harding, has instructed all its branches to make a list of the people the contributions which they receive.

Pueblo, Colo., June 7.—(United News.)—Pueblo is burying its dead.

This is the final act of the tragedy. It is now the flood which took half a hundred lives and caused property damage here estimated at $25,000,000. This was the reason for the only break in the work of salvaging the remains of the city.

Even the burial ceremony at the business section of the city.

Stribling Victor Over Leonard In Battle Before Big Crowd

Young Stribling, of Macon, and Dick Leonard, of Savannah, two clean-limbed, deep-chested, young warriors who have to go several years before they can cast their sovereign ballots, renewed their dispute as to which is the best featherweight in Georgia at Walk Miller's Men's Athletic Club last night. These same boys had met before, right among the lanes of Leonard and Stribling was a referee's decision. Then they met again in the midst of the penates of Stribling, and Stribling won a victory.

Leonard, who was a victor in the first round, was a victor in the second round. Stribling, who was a victor in the third round, was a victor in the fourth round. The game was a close one, with Stribling leading in the eighth, but Leonard rallied in the ninth to win the game.

They never made a cigarette like this in my day

The Camel idea wasn't born then. It was the exclusive expert Camel blend that revolutionized cigarette smoking.

That Camel blend of choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos hits just the right spot. It gives Camels such mellow mildness and fragrance!

The first time I smoked Camels I knew they were made for me. I knew they were the smoothest, finest cigarette in the world, at any price.

Nobody can tell me anything different.

Jack's Concentration Big Asset, Declares Edgren; Describes Work

Noted Boxing Expert Believes That Carpenter Is in Much Better Condition Than Champ.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7.—(Special.)—The thing that impresses me most every time I see Jack Dempsey is his supreme concentration. He has this quality to a degree unequalled by any other boxer I ever saw. Even in training, Dempsey has every thought so concentrated on his work that he is entirely unconscious of everything around him. Jack's house is about fifty yards from the arena, where he boxes at 3 o'clock every afternoon before a crowd of fight fans. At the house and its vicinity he is an ideal host, nodding or talking to everyone who comes back to see him.

At 10 minutes to 3 he disappears. When he comes out of the house at 3 o'clock he is in his fighting gear, ready for work. He walks straight across the road toward the arena, seeing no one, eyes straight ahead, the fighting scowl already creasing his forehead. Without a word, he goes directly to the ring slips through the ropes and begins his work.

First he shadow-boxes for six minutes in two three-minute rounds. Shadow-boxing is serious stuff with Dempsey. He steps and sways around the ring with no slowing up at turning, twisting, ducking imaginary blows, sidestepping and pulling away, plunging in and driving heavy smashes through the air, up-cutting a every detail to the clinches. His forehead creased with a fighting scowl, seeing nothing outside the ring.

The Real Boxing.
After that comes immediately the real boxing. From first to last, Dempsey concentrates his attention accordingly upon his opponent, forcing, moving quickly in endless attack, breaking in blows, blocking counters, taking instant advantage of openings, he is fully attentive to every detail to the clinches. His forehead creased with a fighting scowl, seeing nothing outside the ring.

Talks a Little.
I had a little talk with Jack about this last night after dinner. We had been discussing flying, motorboat driving, a lot of things and other exciting sports.

"But I suppose," I said, "there is no thrill like looking around the corner at the bell with a world's championship at stake." "There's no thrill like looking around the corner at the bell with a world's championship at stake," said Jack. "That's just bulldozing stuff. You see your man in front of you, and you don't see the kind of anything else. You don't think about anything exciting. All you think is, 'There he is—go get him.'"

"I don't think of anything else. I may step aside to draw him in to stand and wait moment for him to come. Or so straight after him, the way it seems best. But the only thought I really have, my mind is to go for an opening and then drive through it. I may be located for an opening in one place, and some expected opening may come from another. I am then alert to grab that and shoot a punch through.

"I never know it. It doesn't make any impression on my mind unless it airt, of course, and then I just have a sort of a side thought that I must not let another punch like that come through. I don't see anything outside the ring or hear anything. It's funny, in the ring at Toledo, the only thing in my mind was that I must put that big fellow down."

Asked Willard.
"Before the fight I never expected to knock Willard out. I did not think he could be knocked out. When I dropped him the first time, I was surprised when he stood up dazed and couldn't cover. I was able to hit him sweet and he kept everything, pulling and he kept getting up. I did not understand it. I thought he ought to stay down. This may not have been exciting to Dempsey, but he was the only man in the arena who didn't come near having heart failure a dozen times in many minutes."

The secret practice limits at Carpenter's camps have been extended. Manager Desamps has announced that the general public will be right excluded hereafter and that the French champion will train before everything, only on Mondays and Fridays, two days a week instead of three. It is hinted that Carpenter will win his title because he is already in fighting condition and needs little more work.

The fight may be in the shape as any man I ever saw. He is in the edge of ring condition but unless his opponent is a real fighter, he will win. His boxing several times a week and his work will consist of practicing and perfecting defense. Dempsey's well-known fighting method is to go in and knock out his opponent.

The Frenchmen are quick and keen and far removed from the ordinary class of fighters. They are applying war methods to Carpenter's training. In the war, the Frenchmen and Dempsey, who also served several years at the front, learned value of intensive training and preparation for attack. The training schedule is strictly up to date and entirely different from the old training, pulling chest weights and slugging a scheduled number of rounds with a rough staff of sparring partners. Naturally Carpenter isn't letting the public and Dempsey into his confidence. No one outside his camp will know how Carpenter will fight until the fight begins. In my opinion, Jack is only sensible when he trains for a battle with a world's championship at stake.

Dempsey's daily training in the ring at a certain hour every afternoon pleases all at the gate. The difference between the Frenchman and Dempsey in condition today is that Dempsey is a month behind him. Dempsey is a month behind him. Dempsey is a month behind him.

MIAMI 2ND IN STANDING
"Scalp the scalpers," is the one expression which, above all others, is most pleasing to the publicity office of Captain Allan Gottschaldt and his ad men who will engage in a battle royal at Ponce de Leon park today with the Ad Men's baseball club from Miami. This slogan was adopted because the Floridians are bringing along a delegation of honest-to-goodness Seminole Indians to aid them in their battle.

The athletic standing of the Miami team is shown in the fact that it stands second place in the fast Miami County League, composed of a number of good teams. But the local ad men have never yet been known to go up in smoke. They have seldom vanished, and with a number of experienced baseball heads on the team, they play a game of ball which is fast and consistently reliable.

The local ad men have talent, too. In "Bent" and "Rube" and "Ruth" Crowley they have two slugger who are expected to slam to the corners of the lot anything which Miami twirlers have to offer. By dint of hard grinding in batting practices, they have been trained to the point where they just seem to the gentle planting of a love tap on the evasive sphere, and the more teasing the twirlers offered, the more delectable they appear to the willow widders.

The Local Stars.
"Tia" Thomas, a former infielder in the Texas league, and "Thomas Marshall" Crosby, once a star outfielder in the Central league, are the home boys two old heads who know what it is to be under the willing fire of hard-fought games. Their influence is expected to have a stabilizing effect upon the few inexperienced novices on the local ad men's club.

Judging by past performances of Jim LaFitte, old New Orleans catcher, it would be a fast Miami sprinter who aspires for the second bag, thinking the veteran's whip is a has been. Because he isn't actively connected with the grand old game now, Jim isn't too old to still catch runners at second.

Captain Gottschaldt is banking strongly on his star man, "Sis" Falvey. "Sis" has no novice in the pitcher's mound. He has baffled the best and the worst. He expects to do likewise to the Miamians. He believes he has a collection to serve Saturday which will make the visiting scalpers worry.

Fine Pitchers.
Notice a fine combination in the pitcher's box of Miami's ad men causes the locals no worry. They have no objection to fighting men nor left-handers and which Miami has both. And therein is said to lie their faith, for if the right-handers cannot stop the Atlanta Braves, they assert they can. And Captain Gottschaldt, voicing the sentiment of his followers, says, "We shall win."

In addition to a coterie of followers and delegates, the Miami squad will be a trailing behind them the Gate City a number of blood-brooded Seminole Indians who will appear at Ponce de Leon in their midst, to strike terror to the staunch local hearts. Some several thousand delegates attending the Associated Advertisers Clubs of the World in Atlanta will witness the game. The ball game will incidentally mark the official opening of this mammoth convention.

McKENNEN LEADS FIELD
Glen Eagles, Scotland, June 7. Two British players, Edward Ray, who holds the American open championship, and James McKendrick, today led the field in professional golfers in the first day's play of the qualifying round in the two thousand guineas tournament. Each man turned in a card of 104 for the 27 holes.

Jack Hutchison, of Chicago, and James Baird, the noted British player, each shot 107, shared honors for third place. The other members of the American contingent, aside from Hutchison, equaled from 111 to 127 strokes to cover the Queen's course of nine holes and the King's course of nine, the aggregate bogie for which 116-36 for the nine holes and 80 for the longer 18.

Emmet French, Youngstown Country Club, went around in 111; Walter Hagen, Detroit in 114; Tom Kerrigan, Slway in 115; George McLean, Grassy Sprain Club, and Douglas Edgar, Atlanta, each 116; Fred McLeod, Columbia country club, 120, and William Melhorn, Shreveport Country Club, 123. James Barnes, Pelham Country Club, who is suffering from neuritis, did not play today. Charles Hoffer, Philmont Country Club, withdrew during the contest.

Tomorrow the players again will go over the courses and the low aggregate scores of the first sixteen players for the two days will entitle them to compete at match play Thursday.

Hutchison started off badly, but later played superb golf, enabling him to lead his competitors on the day's score.

"TWO AND THREE" "PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER" WITH "BUGS" DAER

BIG BANK PRESIDENTS complain that Europe has lost confidence in us. They haven't borrowed anything in almost two decades of the clock. We must trade with Europe even if we give two tens for five.

LOOKS LIKE tough conditions are over. Everything is coming down. Wages, ceilings of bungalows, also last summer's straw hat from attic.

MANY HEALTHY women have been eyed of gems recently. Newport is a purr of diamonds on back windows and to cool off the home-made pie. She disappeared easily. She toddled into suffragette swoon. Notified police. They found jewels in pawnshop where she had hocked 'em.

MOST SOCIETY jewel thefts are inside jobs. Lady loses million dollar necklace. The necklace was in family for years. For man can lose everything he has, but papers print highwayman's name first.

REPORT STEPS forth that priceless Adam's apple has been pinched. Or it may be that has been in family for years. For man can lose everything he has, but papers print highwayman's name first.

LADY WEARING jewels that make her look like old-fashioned chandelier all lighted up for occasion will attend fashionable dance. Jewels evaporate like dew in forest fire. She screams. Search everybody. Police rush in just in time to be searched, too.

AFTER IT'S ALL cured, police find they're lost buttons off coats. Jewels are found in fashionable apiece where lady buys her groceries. Public is let into secret at three cents per copy.

ANOTHER ROMANCE is squashed. Lucian York is chairman of the committee which was appointed to see to it that Atlanta is well-decorated for the occasion, and Mr. York and his cohorts are already hard at work. The business firms on Whitehall, Peachtree and about the downtown marts are already hanging their bunting and displaying the emblem of the A. C. W.—with "Peace" as its motto. Mr. York asks that all concerns have their decorations in place by Saturday at the latest.

In addition to the decorating which the various firms of the city will do, there is a general scheme of adornment which will enliven the central streets from the Terminal station down to Whitehall, north as far as the Aragon hotel, and on the streets leading immediately away from Five Points and to the Auditorium. The lamp posts will be draped and mounted with the ad men's emblem.

That the business men of Atlanta are realizing the value which the convention will have for them is sincerely believed by Mr. York, who has been making his rounds of the city, and who has been making his rounds of the city, and who has been making his rounds of the city.

U. S. MILITARY RULE ON ISLAND TO END IN EIGHT MONTHS
Washington, June 7.—Within eight months the present American military government in San Domingo will probably have been terminated. While President Harding expects to issue a proclamation very soon outlining this government's purposes, investigation has developed that it will be nearly another year before the present military regime has been liquidated.

This government, of course, will set forth the conditions of its withdrawal including assured protection of American lives and property and regularity of procedure in establishing the government to which the present military regime will resign the reins.

Methodist Bishop Marries.
Shelbyville, Tenn., June 7.—Bishop James Atkins, of the Southern Methodist church, and Miss Eva Estelle Rhodes are to be married here this afternoon and after a short bridal trip will go to the groom's home in Wayneville, N. C. for the summer.

The Real Test Now Approaches.
Through the good work of Bill Pierson, John Sugra and Cliff Markle, the Crackers have added one more series to their growing list. Bill turned in a double-header Sunday, winning one of the games; Sugra followed the next day with another victory and Cliff Markle turned in the third one yesterday.

Phil Redgood is destined to make a game that will be nearly another day, unless Pierson decides that he has not enough Bruin meat.

However, it is not to this last game that we affectionately dedicate these paragraphs, but to the games that follow, when the Crackers begin their invasion of Peloton tomorrow. Charlie Frank's system of football is admirable, and the evidence is clear that the Dutchman pointing for those New Orleans games—just what he should be doing.

A team winning half of its games on the road is doing all that is expected of it. As a matter of fact, the percentage could be lower, and there would be few howls from home fans. In Mobile, the Crackers have already bettered that mark, and Mr. Frank can easily afford to take a risk today, and it will be just what when Redgood enters the pit. He might be in unusual form and another victory will result, but at best, this afternoon's battle is a gamble, but fortunately, the New Orleans camp is at chance.

We were not to be surprised when the Pelicans came to this town. In fact, if we had the same luck we would have been surprised if they did not. The Crackers would be so far behind that a falling meteor would not help them. In Sugra and Markle we have two tossers that can furnish that sort of entertainment for the Bruins. Sugra has already had one day's rest, and he gets another today—all Johnny has appeared to need, so far. Starting him in the opener, he will be fresh enough for the final battle, with Cliff Markle left for one of the remaining games.

The Pelicans might lick that combination, but if they do, we'll have to concede them a mightier team than Frank is carrying around, and one that is qualified to every respect to fight it out with the Crackers. The Pelicans offer their strongest opposition, and we are led to believe that when these lads are on the mound, the Frankmen are worthy to contend with the best in the circuit.

Anent That Charity Tourney Saturday.
It's the Druid Hills golfers' turn Saturday to show that they can raise money for charity through a golf tournament. Last year the members of this club turned out in large numbers for this worthy cause, and a neat sum was raised. A committee of ladies from the Atlanta Women's Golf association have worked their fingers off getting up a splendid list of trophies, and if you're a member of the Druid Hills Golf Club, you ought to come Saturday to the tourney.

Here's the history of this tournament. If you're interested enough to read far into the past, you'll find Atlanta's leading golf clubs dedicate one day for a flag tournament, charity golf, and the proceeds go to the Home for Incurables, of which Mrs. Floyd McRae is president, in time to enter, that the unfortunate at this home are badly in need of funds.

TROOPS CALLED OUT TO PREVENT OUTBREAK

Barbourville, Ky., June 7.—State troops were called out here tonight to stop a threatened outbreak of following an affair today in which William Lee, of Upper Knox county, was shot and killed by Bart Reid, former army officer. Lee is said to have threatened Reid because of statements the latter is alleged to have made in connection with indictments returned against his brother charged with shooting Josh Faulkner last week. It was feared that Lee's friends might try to avenge the killing.

Atlanta Business Firms Decorating To Greet Ad Men

Downtown Atlanta was brightening Tuesday the reception of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which gather here June 12 to June 15 for the 1921 annual convention, bringing approximately 3,000 of the nation's leading business men.

Lucian York is chairman of the committee which was appointed to see to it that Atlanta is well-decorated for the occasion, and Mr. York and his cohorts are already hard at work. The business firms on Whitehall, Peachtree and about the downtown marts are already hanging their bunting and displaying the emblem of the A. C. W.—with "Peace" as its motto. Mr. York asks that all concerns have their decorations in place by Saturday at the latest.

In addition to the decorating which the various firms of the city will do, there is a general scheme of adornment which will enliven the central streets from the Terminal station down to Whitehall, north as far as the Aragon hotel, and on the streets leading immediately away from Five Points and to the Auditorium. The lamp posts will be draped and mounted with the ad men's emblem.

That the business men of Atlanta are realizing the value which the convention will have for them is sincerely believed by Mr. York, who has been making his rounds of the city, and who has been making his rounds of the city, and who has been making his rounds of the city.

Alabama Election Democrat Victory, Returns Indicate

Montgomery, Ala., June 7.—Unofficial returns at 10 o'clock tonight indicate Major Jeffers' majority will be above 4,000 if not as high as 5,000.

Major Jeffers' returns from Cleaveburn county, which went republican in the last election, indicate that the democratic candidate will carry it by a small majority.

Chilton county returns indicate a small majority for Judge A. P. Longshore and his home county (Shelby) will probably show, on 200. Major Jeffers' majority in his home, Calhoun county, is now estimated to run over 1200 with small votes to report Dallas and Talladega counties, according to returns already received, will give the democratic candidate about 1,400 majority each.

White Youth Held On Murder Charge In Brutal Affair
Knoxville, Tenn., June 7.—"Ern" Quillen, an 18-year-old white youth, was arrested tonight as he boarded a train at Fordtown, Tenn., on charge of having killed 11-year-old Elsie Lawson, who, half-nude, was discovered in the basement back of Kingsport this morning. Quillen, three months ago, was pardoned from the penitentiary where he was serving a 15-year sentence for rape. The body of the Lawson girl was found under the bleachers at this baseball park in Kingsport this morning. Bloodhounds were brought to run over the park, and the skull from a scuffling. Half destroyed in the park, the body and there were evidences of a struggle.

The girl, who lived with her parents a short distance from the ball park, was seen about dusk last night in the park, and was taken to the hospital. The body was found under the bleachers at this baseball park in Kingsport this morning. Bloodhounds were brought to run over the park, and the skull from a scuffling. Half destroyed in the park, the body and there were evidences of a struggle.

Kingsport was thrown into intense excitement by news of the crime. Bloodhounds were brought from Johnson City, arriving late in the afternoon. In order to avoid destroying the game, a baseball game scheduled at Kingsport between the local and Knoxville teams was called off and the crowd was kept off the vicinity until the dogs took up the trail.

Would Build "Cut-Off."
Washington, June 7.—The Gulf-Terminal Railway company asked authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to build a "cut-off" between Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile, Ala., claiming that it would save 100 miles and south of Mobile would be saved.

EXPECT SHIP BOARD PERSONNEL SOON

Washington, June 7.—President Harding's long delayed nomination of members of the shipping board are expected to go to the senate within the next forty-eight hours. As a result of a series of conferences today between officials here and A. D. Lasker, of Chicago, who has been selected for the board chairmanship.

Mr. Lasker had two long conversations with the president during the day, and although he said afterward that a final conclusion was yet to be reached, the general impression in administration circles was that he would accept the appointment. He will call at the white house again tomorrow and a formal announcement on the subject is expected to follow.

The names of all seven members of the board, it is believed, will be included in this announcement and all seven of the nominations will go to the senate together. It is understood the administration was in communication tonight with several of those selected, to make sure that there would be no hitch regarding acceptances after the list was submitted for senate ratification.

Administration officials made it manifest that this list would be sent to the senate tomorrow if possible. The president has found the choice of a board one of the most difficult tasks in the organization of his administration and is said to feel that submission of the appointments in the immediate future is a prime necessity. At several cabinet meetings the subject has been earnestly discussed and the president's close advisers are said to have increased recently their pressure for action.

Today Mr. Lasker, who served in the advertising department of a republican national headquarters during last year's campaign, was urged by a number of party leaders here to take the chairmanship and thus make it possible to close up the troublesome situation. The post of chairman has been a stumbling block from the first, two men having declined it after the president had believed acceptance certain and Mr. Lasker himself having indicated that he would not take it unless virtually drafted into service.

Another white house caller who talked shipping board with the president during the day was Senator Jones, republican, Washington, chairman of the senate commerce committee. Senator Jones was closeted with Mr. Harding for a long time before Mr. Lasker arrived for his second conference of the day and the whole subject of membership in the board was discussed.

The nominations, when submitted, will go to the commerce committee for recommendation regarding their confirmation.

WEATHER MAN FIRM IN HIS PREDICTION OF MORE ARIDITY

With dark and ominous clouds looming in the west and a mist of rain falling almost imperceptibly Monday afternoon, C. F. von Herrmann, local weather forecaster, remained firm in the faith and predicted that Wednesday will continue fair with little change in temperature.

On the strength of this prediction the weather reporter went out and purchased new rain gear, including a hat and a long coat, and in the clothing store noticed that many Atlanta citizens held the same confidence in the weather man that the sun would shine Wednesday and that no rain would fall to the type of rain that is so disconcerting to the wearer.

Mr. von Herrmann declared there is nothing to indicate that storms are in sight and held the view that gardens will have to go a few days longer without rain.

The elements Tuesday gave every indication that the weather man was mistaken, as all day it appeared as if heavy showers would begin to fall at almost any instant. A few minutes before 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a slight rain, hardly more than a mist, fell, but the expected showers did not come and the weather man's forecast stood justified.

The check was made out to Otto M. Conn, treasurer of the institution, and will be used for the maintenance of the hospital.

Church Play.

Tickets are 25 cents and are being sold by the young women of the church.

People Are Told To Buy Coal Now, Or Face Shortage

In a recent official statement issued by C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad system, he asserts that he confidently anticipates a serious coal shortage throughout the country unless consumers begin immediately moving coal in large volumes. "We are emerging from a serious business depression," he declared, "and within a very few months the railways will be taxed to their capacity in handling traffic other than coal. The time to commence transportation of coal is now."

Mr. Markham takes the view that there is grave danger in the near future of another coal panic, unless prompt action be taken. As president of one of the largest coal-carrying roads of the middle west, he said he considered it his duty to issue the warning to the general public.

"The coal-carrying equipment of the railroads is sufficient to handle a large evenly-balanced coal tonnage," the official statement read, "but if consumers fail to take advantage of the present opportunity to lay in fall and winter stocks of another coal panic, unless prompt action be taken, the public in general certainly will not attach the blame to the coal mines. More than 255,000 open top cars are now standing idle on the side tracks of railroads."

The hope was expressed that dealers and consumers had not forgotten the lessons taught by the one in 1920. It was pointed out that a heavy season of a heavy coal tonnage on the railways would not only overtax their capacities, but would also result in higher prices for coal.

Mother to Meet Son Who Returns From Three Wars

Macon, Ga., June 7.—(Special.) Twenty-two years ago Mrs. James T. Chapman, of Macon, kissed her sixteen-year-old boy Felix, a young man, and sent him off to the Spanish-American war. Since that time she has not seen him, but when she returns to Macon tomorrow morning from Eastman, she will walk into the arms of a big, strong, sun-burned man, for Felix Chapman returned to Macon today after wandering over the face of the earth and participating in two other wars, with Funston in the Philippines, and in the world war.

After serving three years with the army in the Philippines, Chapman later spent eleven years in commercial work in the island possessions, returning to the states in 1910. He then spent a year at sea, and then five years in the army transport service.

In 1918 he enlisted and went overseas with the Sunset division, serving sixteen months. When he was discharged in October, 1919, he at once reentered the army transport service. He came south recently on a train carrying forty-five bodies of Georgia boys who were killed in France, and has obtained a three weeks leave of absence to visit his mother.

Chapman's father was formerly a Macon policeman, and died three years after young Chapman left Macon. His mother is not aware of his presence in Macon and will have to be introduced to her own son when she returns here tomorrow.

DR. GAMBRELL DYING IN DALLAS HOSPITAL

Macon, Ga., June 7.—(Special.) Telegrams were received in Macon today by Pat H. Gambrell, stating that Dr. J. B. Gambrell, former president of Mercer University, and former president of the Southern Baptist convention, is dying at the Baptist sanitarium in Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Gambrell left early this morning for Dallas. At the bedside of the aged clergyman already are Mrs. Lulu Gambrell, wife of Macon, who has been in Texas about two months, and Mrs. Frank A. Babbs, and Mrs. Pauline Gambrell Porter.

Dr. Gambrell was stricken about two months ago, and it was believed at that time that his illness might be fatal. He rallied, however, and was well enough to return to his desk for an hour or two a day. He suffered a relapse and was forced back to bed. His physician, Dr. W. I. Loolittle, wired

ACIDOSIS COMMON IN GROWN PEOPLE

Health Scientists Now Attribute Most of Our Daily Ills to Acidosis.

Acidosis, the disease that has proven so fatal to infants and children, medical authorities now tell us is more prevalent in adults than in children, but, due to a milk diet, the mortality is highest in infancy. Acidosis is one of the most serious conditions that attack persons of sedentary habits, heavy meat-eaters and those advanced in years, and it has been established that the physical fact of death is the final triumph of acids in the blood.

Acidosis attacks any part of the body, and is the cause of all of our daily ailments. If you have indigestion, tongue gets coated, feel bilious or constipated, the well informed doctor will no longer use these old familiar terms, but will now tell you that you have acidosis. These, and many other ills, such as heartburn, headache, auto-intoxication, skin itching, bad blood, etc., according to later-day science, are not diseases, but merely nature's way of telling you that the blood is poisoned and the body fluids so unbalanced that your organs can not work properly, or, in other words, that you have acidosis, which is the cause of these other ailments.

You know that a pinch of common cooking soda will relieve indigestion, for the reason that soda, for the time being, overcomes acidity, giving temporary relief only. There are numerous remedies for temporarily relieving the effects of acidosis, but they do not remove the acidosis itself, and that is why people have "chronic" indigestion, constipation, bad blood, etc. After the temporary relief wears off, the trouble returns, and in order to obtain permanent relief, the cause (acidosis) must be removed.

A chemist of authority on acidosis, after much study and hundreds of tests, has perfected a preparation called Kelson (pronounced "kel-sun") Blood and Body Builder, that is recommended as a specific for acidosis. Kelson Blood and Body Builder keeps the blood and body fluids in the proper balance by introducing into the system those various elements which improve the quality of the blood and eliminate the acidity of the body fluids. Kelson Blood and Body Builder counteracts any tendency to acidosis, and gives immediate relief to the symptoms. It is taken only once daily, at bedtime. Any good drug store can supply Kelson at one dollar per bottle. Kelson, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

Mr. Gambrell today that the end is near.

Dr. Gambrell had been for four years president of the Southern Baptist convention until early last month, when he refused because of his illness to allow his name to be offered for re-election. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, his close friend, was elected to succeed him.

BUNCO!

Frequently people realize they've been buncoed when they send their money away off to foreign fields for goods—and then find they could have done much better at home.

The fellow who buys the things he wears and eats and uses here at home always knows what he's getting.

They are made right here at home in plants and factories almost around his door.

His neighbor, perhaps, works in one of these manufacturing plants.

The goods he buys represent home labor—and when he spends his money in this way he is helping and encouraging home enterprises.

Not so when his money travels away off to foreign fields.

Of course, sometimes, a fellow just naturally loves to buy something with a foreign label on it. But when it has cost him more money, and when he has to wait longer for its delivery, and when it's no better—maybe not as good—as he could have bought at home, and then when his money's gone forever, so far as helping his home section is concerned—

—how much better off is he?

And is his home section improved any by his act?

Buy at home. Home manufacturers make good products. They employ home people. They appreciate your patronage.
